Since its creation in 1993, the British Aviation Group (BAG) has worked to help British companies to win work in the airports and aviation sector, both in the UK and internationally, by helping them to showcase their experience and expertise through missions and events and through our online and printed communications materials.

Initially founded as an Airports Advisory Group to the Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) and later known as the British Airports Group, the organisation has evolved over the past two decades to include the aviation sector and become the leading independent representative body for companies in the industry. The British Airports Group was rebranded in 2008 to become the British Aviation Group to reflect the extent of the membership.

The British Aviation Group is the only association with a membership that covers the full spectrum of airport development expertise in the UK.

Today, our membership covers the full spectrum of manufacturers and service providers in the airports and aviation sector. We currently represent over 170 companies of all sizes, whose products and services are required in the development of modern, efficient, world-class airports. Our Members operate in over 150 countries worldwide and have enjoyed notable business success, winning contracts across almost all of the world's largest airports.
